Handwriting practice

Tips and ideas for supporting your children to develop their handwriting.

Warming up finger muscles

- Open your hand out so that the gap between the thumb and the forefinger forms an L shape.
- Touch the thumb to the forefinger and press.
- Stretch open the hand.
- Then touch the thumb to the middle finger and press.
- Stretch open the hand.
- Press the thumb together with the third finger.
- Stretch open the hand.
- Press the thumb to the little finger.
- Stretch open the hand.
- Repeat five times.

The pen licence

Birds are tweeting now,
Sun light is shining today,
Blossom is blooming.

anyone or anything, then kneeled down to get a closer look
"See, its a dragon egg or thats what it looks like." Mint explained using her dragon knowledge.
Suddenly, a torch light flickered in the distance. "No No
No!" Mint quietly muttered.

Once a year Carolian class visit the Fitzwilliam museum and this year was no exception. It was only when the class meandered into the ancient Greek section, a lovely wreath caught Alex's attention: healthy lovely gleaming in the sunlight; greens shimmered like a watery rainbow and an iridescent lake mixed together.
